Calling for entries to Sarawak CM ICT Media Awards contest

KUCHING: Sarawak Information Systems Sdn Bhd (Sains) in collaboration with the Sarawak Chief Minister's Office once again is calling for entries to the coming 6th Sarawak Chief Minister ICT Media Awards Competition.

The annual competition, under the patronage of the Chief Minister Tan Sri Abdul Taib Mahmud, was established to encourage journalists and writers to address ICT-related topics and promote the use of ICT.

It is also aimed at creating greater awareness of the importance of ICT for the state's socio-economic development.

The contest is divided into two categories — print and electronic media. Entries can either be in English, Malay or Chinese, and all must be published articles or materials broadcast over radio or television from January to December last year.

The competition is open to all media practitioners in the print and broadcast organisations. All entries must be in the form of either features, news articles, feature reporting or documentaries on ICT-related subjects printed in either local newspapers or aired over local radios or television in Sarawak by licensed media organisations.

Entries will be evaluated based on journalistic quality, communication impact and objectivity. The judges for the events will be representatives from Sains, Universiti Sarawak Malaysia, ICT Unit in the Chief Minister's Department, Angkatan Zaman Mansang and state Information Department.

Information on the competition, rules and regulations, and entry forms can be downloaded from Sains website at www.sains.com.my.

All entries must reach the competition's secretariat by July 26.
